

The Future of Work in the Aussie Cotton Industry

Dr Nicole McDonald

Email: nicole.mcdonald@usq.edu.au

Phone: 0403 204 199

Twitter: @nic_career

Instagram: nic_agcareers

Facebook: Nicole McDonald

I just thought the conference was amazing..., it gave me the footsteps into that doorway, to say that, "Hey, look, you're young, you're a student, you don't have to be from a cotton background, but come on over. Come and look what we do" so I guess it was just pretty amazing just to have that opportunity. – On-farm agronomist, aspiring farm manager.

"I wasn't looking at getting back into the cotton industry until <Grower> got me a ticket to the cotton conference...Going to the cotton conference and really seeing what it was all about was really like, yeah I really want to get in, I really want to come back into cotton" – Product development manager

Cotton Conference changed my career trajectory

When did the cotton industry come onto your radar as somewhere you could apply your skills?

"I think it would have been my third year, when the cotton conference was on and I got a scholarship through the PICSE program" – Researcher, agricultural engineering